Military Alliance With Soviet May Be Effected To Stay New Onslaught

By JOHN MARTIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Informed French quarters expressed belief today that Hitler was preparing to make peace proposals, backed by the threat of a possible German-Soviet military alliance and new troop concentrations in the west.

These sources said they would not be surprised if Hitler made representations to France and Great Britain before the weekend. Such representations, it was expected, would ask the allies to recognize the German-Soviet partition of Poland and raise consideration of Germany's colonial demands.

COMPLETE WAR

Refusal to consider peace on this basis, observers declared, might lead to Hitler as justifying a complete war upon France and Britain—even to the extent, they said, of a dash through neutral countries in an effort to combat the British blockade. (Berlin officials had disavowed any such plan at last.)

Both France and Britain have issued repeated official statements that there would be no peace until the Hitler regime was destroyed and Polish independence restored. It was generally believed that Paris and London would not accept any peace proposals until the German-Soviet military alliance is completely broken.

TURKEY WILL REMAIN WITH DEMOCRACIES

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 28.—Turco-Russian parties in Moscow are not related to the presence there of the German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, the newspaper Yenisayf said today.

"It is impossible to turn Turkey from her undertakings with the democracies, contracted to the complicity against Turkey and displace misunderstandings."

15 KILLED IN BIG MUNITIONS FACTORY BLAST

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The ministry of supply announced that 15 persons were killed today by an explosion in a munitions factory somewhere in the north of Great Britain.

The location of the factory was not disclosed because the fact it was in the north.

Four other persons were injured. A communique issued by the ministry of information said:

"The ministry of supply regrets to announce that at one of the northern explosive factories an explosion took place this afternoon involving the loss of as far as is known of 15 lives."

"Four persons were also injured. The material damaged was seriously interfered with production."

IN new living memory of the officers and non-commissioned officers and men of the 4th Battalion (Edmonton Regiment) who were killed in action, at the close of World War I, the 4th Battalion (Edmonton Regiment) was reformed on the 26th September, 1918.

Group German U-Boat Prisoners Look Fit But Trifle Haggard

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A group of German, described as "U-boat prisoners," arrived at an internment camp in a northern industrial area today, the Ministry of Information announced.

"Most of them were civilian dress—although a few had retained their naval trousers and boots," the ministry announcement said. "They looked fit but a trifle haggard. The average age was about 30 and they carried evidence of personal hardships in cardboard boxes. When questioned by officers they stood bravely to attention."

(Prime Minister Chamberlain on Sept. 15 told the House of Commons prisoners had been taken in British successes against German submarines. Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, on Tuesday said additional German submarine men had been captured.)

German prisoners are being interned in a "quaint, five-storied" eastern mill of 1,000 windows overlooking a crowded village in the heart of the northern industrial area, the ministry announcement said.

German prisoners now are playing football on the mill roof, the ministry said.

HITLER LAUDS U-BOAT CREWS AT NAVAL BASE

WILHELMSHAHN, Germany, Sept. 28.—Adolf Hitler visited this North Sea naval base today to "congratulate" submarine crews returning from cruises in "enemy" waters. The dictator said he was pleased to see the crews and to hear of their "successful" trips.

The Führer thanked officers and personnel and later at an informal gathering had members of the crews, including a war trade representative, the announcement said.

British Plane Escapes From North Iceland

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 28.—A British warplane was forced to land at Raufarhollur in northern Iceland today, the newspaper Berlingske Aftensavis said in a dispatch from Reykjavik.

The dispatch said the plane and crew had been informed after being forced down yesterday.

Russia Is Ready To Negotiate War Trade Pact With Britain

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Iran Maj. Seyid Amir-Abbas, Soviet ambassador in London, has assured the British government that Russia is willing to negotiate a war trade agreement, it was learned tonight from an authoritative source.

Hitler Gambling Verdict Of Fast Stroke In West To Smash Allied Line

By SIR PHILIP GIBBS
Copyright, 1939, by The Edmonton Bulletin. Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—If Hitler comes to the western front next week as reported we may expect him to make the terrific decision between a war of defense in the west and the great gamble of a lightning war by an attempt in full strength to smash the French and British lines.

I happen to know that the German general staff was hostile two months ago to this idea of an assault upon the Maginot line. Field Marshal Goering was against it. He told one of his generals that it would cost Germany a million men to break that French line and that military opinion in Germany was unwilling to make that sacrifice of man-power.

The German plan at that time was to stay behind their western wall purely on the defensive and resisting French and British attacks which would be heavy in cost and ineffective.

It was also decided that there would be no war in the air against England or France so long as they refrained from bombing German cities. They expected to finish off Poland in the next few weeks at most and then to get on with their plans in southern Europe.

When I was told that the German general staff was in touch with headquarters I was incredulous. But so far everything he said has happened that way.

The population of London and other English cities stare up in the sky and wonder why bombing aircraft do not come from within and within German planes from without and within.

Such policy of a trade in the air.

EMBARGO BILL APPROVED BY SENATE GROUP

Debate On Measure Scheduled To Start Monday

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The Senate group of the House of Representatives approved today the government's neutrality bill to permit the use of armaments to belligerent nations. Senate debate on the measure is scheduled to start Monday.

The bill was approved after a three-hour session. It would "tag" the existing embargo on arms to belligerent nations.

Belligerents would be required to take title to all armaments and other goods purchased in the United States before they were shipped, however, and would have to carry the purchase home in their own vessels.

EDMONTON IS DRAPED WITH SNOW BLANKET

Snowfall More Than A Month Earlier Than Last Autumn

Edmonton got its initial taste of winter today when one-half inch of snow fell over the city early Wednesday evening, heavy falling flakes at a p.m. An all-time record for the city was set when the snow fell on the ground up to 9 a.m. Thursday.

It was still snowing when the weather report came in shortly after 9 a.m. with a forecast of "drizzle."

Snow fell on Edmonton for the first time in 1939. The heaviest snow recorded in the history of the city was in 1900 when there was three and one-half inches fell on August 6. Earliest snow in recent years was on July 28, 1937, when it fell on the city.

Intermittent intervals beginning September 1, 1938, when it fell on the city.

Notwithstanding the near north, was the only point there reporting snow last night. Showers fell at Peace River.

Highest temperature yesterday was 40 above. Overnight minimum was 20 above. Reading at 8:30 a.m. was 31 above.

Gas Mask Hint Is Offered For Bearded Gents

LONDON, Sept. 28.—From Canada, which has not known the hand of an invader since the days of the Boer War, a suggestion has been made that the British government should consider the possibility of a "border bride" of Pierre Du Bois, a member of the French Air Force, who is now in the hands of the Germans.

Military regulations forbade Du Bois to cross the border until the marriage was performed. After the ceremony the bride stepped over the border, having regard to the period of war expected by the British government—three years. It is not possible to obtain definite details at present, although it is understood that the marriage will be celebrated within a matter of days. It is understood that the capacity of the Pacific coast is reckoned at some 30 ships per year.

Deep Thought

Accompanied by Lord Cadogan, Lord Halifax appears deep in thought as they walk in the foreign office with their gas masks along over their shoulders.

GERMAN SUBS DRIVEN FROM SHIP ROUTES

Authoritative Account Of North Sea Battle Given In London

LONDON, Sept. 28.—German submarines were said in an authoritative statement today to have been driven from "lucky" deep shipping routes around the British coast.

"It was not a month they have found the pace too hot for them and have retreated from much of the shipping channels and are now forced to operate much further out in the open sea where the British is bound to be a much more 'one' the statement said."

At the same time an Admiralty spokesman described a German report that Nazi warplanes had bombed a heavy British cruiser off the Scottish coast as "all pure crack."

The Prime Minister said today that "understands there is no truth whatever" to report of the attack on the British cruiser.

German radio is a repetition of a false claim made yesterday in connection with the North Sea battle, the spokesman said. The latter statement was a repetition of the German command's assertion that on Tuesday Nazi airplanes destroyed a

ALBERTA COAL OUTPUT SHOWS MARKED GAINS

Indicative of the rapidly increasing development and use of Alberta's resources with expanding export markets, coal production in this province for the first nine months of this year totalled 2,573,696 tons, according to A. A. Miller, chief mines inspector of the lands and mines department.

This is an increase of 1,481 tons over the corresponding period of the previous year, when production of coal totalled 1,092,696 tons.

In 1938 production totalled 2,092,115 tons at against 2,139,100 tons in July of 1938, an increase of 46,775 tons.

Figures show that the main gain in production is in the bituminous field. This increase is a result of orders by railways companies in expectation of heavy grain movements this fall.

Some mines report a shortage of men in the domestic coal field. It is expected that this field will become increasingly active with the onset of winter.

From the domestic district increased shipments have been made to Ontario which is looking for an increase of 400,000 tons for Alberta coal.

Powerful Blast At Sea Is Heard In Skagerrak

ARSENAL, Norway, Sept. 28.—Inhabitants of Mardøen Island in the Skagerrak, which connects the North Sea with the Baltic, reported today a powerful explosion at sea, which was heard at 9 a.m. M.T.T. Three hours later, a ship, a submarine, was sighted heading northward about 35 miles off the coast.

Immunity Cards

All persons of German citizenship who are resident in Canada are required to report for registration to the nearest registrar of alien enemies. These officials are now being appointed, and notice will be given by the courts where the registrar of each district may be found.

Every one to whom this regulation applies will be well advised to obey promptly once the information is given as to where he should register. Failure to do so will be an offence against the law, making the party concerned liable to confinement in an internment camp.

That aside, to register is the one thing a German citizen in Canada can do to show himself free of hostile intent toward the country in which he is living, and therefore entitled to be treated without suspicion or discrimination in his business and social relationships. To fail to register would be to invite these unofficial but very severe penalties, in addition to the punishment prescribed in law. A registration card will be a protection against both.

Dietary Patriotism

Because war has narrowed the British demand for fruit, apple-growers in Nova Scotia and British Columbia are without an export market, and the Dominion Government is coming to their rescue by buying up the surplus.

During the former war, Sir George Foster solved the same problem for the growers by selling an unprecedented amount of their crop to Canadian consumers. He did it by running large advertisements in the newspapers stressing the maxim that "An apple a day keeps the doctor away."

The same results can undoubtedly be achieved now if the same means are taken. Canadians do not ordinarily appreciate the excellence or the food value of the Canadian apple. They buy imported oranges and other sub-tropical fruit instead, and in quantities sufficient to displace scores of thousands of boxes and barrels.

It is to be supposed, as the Government is taking a hand in the distribution, that the price will be made attractive to the consuming public. If so, the growers may be surprised to find how elastic is the Canadian appetite for apples when appealed to by good publicity and a sales-encouraging price.

At Varsity

'Varsity is opening for the year with the largest freshman- and woman-class in its history. Five hundred or more young Albertans are starting the course, running three years or more, which will qualify them for the professions or give them the general education required to obtain a "straight" B. A. degree.

This may be taken as a reflection of the improved economic conditions, which make it possible for more than the usual number of young people to undertake the expenditure of time and money. It is a definite and convincing evidence of the broadening desire among boys and girls in this province to obtain something more than a high school education, and of willingness on the part of parents to finance them in the effort.

Young men outnumber young women among the new students in the ratio of about three to one, which is rather surprising, and not at all satisfactory in so far as it indicates that girls are not getting as much encouragement as boys to acquire higher education.

It is noted that many of the men are signing for training in the uniformed contingent of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps. Also that students are advised to select courses which will fit them to fill vacancies in the teaching profession which may occur through teaching in the military forces. This is observable in this a recognition that the war may be a long one, and that trained men may be needed a year or two or three years hence in large numbers.

To Sink Or Not To Sink

There may be little, or less than reported, in the story that Herr Goering and Admiral Raeder are at loggerheads because the Admiral's submarines have been sinking Swedish ships without warning, and thereby provoking Sweden to cut off the supplies of iron and other war materials which Herr Goering needs in his business of munitions-making.

But there is no doubt about the sinkings, nor about the total disregard for humanity and international law displayed in the unwarned attacks; and to anyone not infected with the peculiar Nazi "psychology" no more doubt about the reaction to these atrocities in Sweden. If the business keeps on it is likely that Herr Goering will have to look elsewhere for his supplies of iron and cellulose.

But however the minister of munitions may feel about it, there is to be said for Raeder. He has precedent on his side. Von Tirpitz sank neutral ships without warning, even to the point of bringing the United States into the former war. And if Raeder doesn't sink Swedish ships en route to Britain, how is he going to cut off Swedish supplies from that country?

The submarine is a poor instrument for use in accord with decency and law. It cannot with great success operate as a surface boat, stop merchant vessels, search them, and deal with them according to the recognized rules. It is by nature a murder weapon, and can only achieve maximum results when so employed.

Sweden's ships seem to be allowed Swedish supply ships to ply to Britain with little interference, or sink them and risk the stoppage of Swedish supplies to Germany. What is a perplexed pirate chief to do in such circumstances?

Editorial Notes

"Diplomatic circles" in Bucharest report a movement, started by Turkey, to bring the Balkan states, Italy and Russia in a neutral bloc. The report sounded likely enough to send Ribbentrop scuttling to Moscow to offer the mission of the Turkish foreign minister and try to persuade Stalin to fight Hitler's battles. If Stalin is in possession of his usual cunning it will take some persuading to do the trick.

Moscow's demands upon Estonia look enough like Hitler's demands upon Poland to suggest the Estonians had better prepare for the worst. It is their misfortune that their country is so situated as to be a potential menace to Russia's one outlet to the North, the German ship. In the case of power politics now practiced in the eastern half of Europe, that is sufficient to justify its destruction.

In Boston harbor the captain of a British freighter sent a side of beef to the hungry crew of a German ship. The incident is pleasant to read about in these days of hostility not always confined to official attitudes and military operations. It is symbolic too of the relations which would now exist between the peoples of Britain and Germany if the people of the latter country were running their country's affairs and setting its foreign policy.

The Passing Show

By J. S. CONYER

"My work is to win a war; not popularity," said the epigrammatic Marcellus to those who urged him to tell the world what the French army is doing on the western front. The same philosophy actuates the Navy in its task of hunting and sinking submarines. Very guarded are the accounts. Few details are given of the methods employed; never is the location mentioned. Even the name and location of the submarine are withheld. There's motive in this. The purpose of submarine crews is not knowing the fate of their sister ships and crews is one purpose for secrecy; another is to prevent the enemy from learning in which areas he is no longer respected.

The sub that fired shells was probably out of torpedoes. That item of information is better kept secret. Subs are tricky things. Their power to run under water is limited to their battery storage. They must come to the surface to run their Diesel engines and charge their batteries.

Britain has fewer destroyers in service today than during the Great War. The new patrol craft, being built in large numbers, are as effective as destroyers in hunting and bombing submarines. New detector devices are a close secret of the British Admiralty. The size, power, and air-keeping qualities of some of the aerial bombers used in sub-hunting are indicated by the number of loads they can carry. Two destroyers picked up a torpedoed crew of 30 men and the other 14.

We shall have to wait till the war is over before the details of this exciting branch of the naval count can be told. One thing is clear, the submarine is no longer a device to be scorned in the early years of the Great War, when it came within threat of starving the British people. It is still the deciding factor in war as when Captain Mahan wrote his book forty years ago, asserting the paramountcy of sea power.

At a meeting of the American Chemical Society in Boston a few days ago, President Karl Compton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology put forth the theory that synthetic chemistry could end the major economic causes of war by enabling any nation to produce synthetic oil, rubber, coal and other essential commodities.

No doubt research cheaper than war, and chemistry can supply substitutes and speed agriculture. But is lack of essential materials the cause or the excuse for war? Germany has invented substitutes for almost everything. It can buy in the open market and ship from any part of the world to the homeland, as freely in peace or war as it can.

Chemists will have to produce new synthetic hearts and minds before they rid the world of hunger, crime, and human misery. Human and human pride are still paramount causes of war in the world today. And synthetics are not always perfect substitutes. The "knocking" of German airplane motors running gasoline distilled from coal may lose her war in the air. France and Britain have 100 octane motor fuel from the petroleum wells of Persia. The best that Germany can produce is a 75 octane gasoline from coal. A 35 per cent power output means that Germany will lose 30 per cent of its power. The difference of a few miles an hour in speed may decide who will be victor in the air.

History repeats itself. How does this fit into the events of today? The Life and Death of Louis XVI; by Dr. Saul Padover. He is quoting from the writings of Charles de Vergennes and Minister of Foreign Affairs for Louis, discussing the dimmerment of Poland in 1772 by Prussia, Austria and Russia. "The absolute repeats itself," writes Graviser. "The absolute repeats itself," writes Graviser. "The absolute repeats itself," writes Graviser.

justice and decency which characterize the conduct of some contemporary powers (Prussia, Austria and Russia) ought to be the pressing need of anxious reflection and of preventive measures. . . . If might is right, if expediency is a claim, how can States feel secure in the future? Of immemorial possession, if solemn treaties no longer serve as a brake on ambition, how can one protect oneself against surprise and invasion? If political brigandage perpetuates itself, peace will cease to be anything but an open barrier to perfidiousness and treason." Poland survived the ordeal of 1772. Will she survive the ordeal of 1939?

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

One hundred years ago today the people of Quebec were told that the invading convict army of the British Empire had been routed from Upper Canada and 84 from Lower Canada. These were not the first times that British participation in the rebellions, others having been taken first in England. These latter had probably the worst of the deal, for the British had been confirmed they were placed in convict hulks with the very vilest dregs of British criminals, while the British had been mostly honest, if misguided, men.

The French-Canadians who were destined for being British (New South Wales) were segregated from the men from the United Kingdom, and were forbidden, though, of course, as some of the guards were venal (as is always the case), letters and gifts of tobacco were exchanged between the two groups. Some of the Upper Canadian prisoners were permitted to write letters home, submitted to censorship, and these were allowed to be forwarded by the pilot when he left the Buffalo at Rimouski.

The food and drink supplied was far better than that they had received at the Toronto jail or in Fort Henry at Kingston, and much better than was the miserable standard set for immigrants from the old world. The food was barely enough to keep them alive and was the cause of much ship fever.

Current Comment

The U.S. View

Christian Science Monitor: The people of the United States have two chief desires: To keep out of war and to aid the resistance to Hitlerism. There are also some Americans who wish to be completely impartial. But it has now become clear that the effect of the arms embargo is to favor Germany, even as refusal to effect favor France and Britain. Thus there is no genuine impartiality, and in this sense no neutrality. There is in the United States today a strong feeling against sending troops to Europe. If it be true that America could not tolerate a defeat of Britain and France, then aid given now might be the best insurance against a later entry into the war.

Philadelphia Record: Let's not beat about the bush. The cash-and-carry plan is not neutral in intention whatever it may be in theory. It is meant to throw the whole weight of our resources and arms on the Allied side. Congress should throw out the issue thoroughly, by saying that if our people want cash-and-carry they are prepared to follow it up with Sammy-got-your-gun.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The business before Congress at the special session which convened Thursday is to keep the United States from taking the side of Adolf Hitler in the European war. It has become the solemn and immediate obligation of Congress to restore to our trade rights as neutrals, and to end a halfway-outside, in effect, makes our foreign policy pro-Nazi.

Washington Post: We may not be shipping arms, munitions and implements to the belligerents. We may not be placing our own soldiers in the way of the sale and shipment of foodstuffs, scrap iron, cotton, copper, petroleum and other raw materials. But we are doing it in the same actual bullets and airplanes. An increasing number of feet that arms, munitions and implements of war are being sent in the same cargo ships as neutral materials out of which are made the fuel which makes them operate.

Philadelphia Record: Only a year ago in the Czech, Polish, Soviet and Rumanian press the sanctity of treaties, and on the surface at least, castigating Britain and France for selling arms to Germany. Today the Soviet government joins the aggressors, and the hands of Hitler and Stalin are quite indistinguishable. One can not tell them apart for the blood, Communism has revealed merely as an unwashed totalitarianism.

New York Times: For at least the last fifteen years Communism and Fascism have lived on each other. Each has declared itself to be the other's exact antithesis and only formidable enemy. At last the issue stands clear. Hitlerism is brown Communism, Stalinism is red Fascism. The world will now understand that the only real "ideological" issue is one between democracy, liberty and peace, on the one hand, and despotism, terror and war on the other.

The Baltimore Sun: Both Hitler and Stalin cherish imperialistic ambitions, are bent on aggrandizement and on personal glory. Yesterday they were allies, but today they are enemies. They will go on together from that point or whether, like the two great powers of the world, they will go on together for the two of them at one time.

New York Herald-Tribune: Faced with events like these, can any American simply shrug his shoulders and announce that war is a terrible and bloody business and that therefore, whatever happens, this country must "seek to isolate ourselves completely from it"? Can any rational man say, as the isolationists are now saying in effect, that under no conceivable circumstance will the days to come bring any threat to our national security which we ought to meet by force and that therefore we should bind our hands against any action now in support of those interests which might have even remote possibility of unpleasantness?

Washington Post: In normal times dislike of the American people for militarism properly forms part of the development here and there is very comparable to those of the European powers. That is as it should be. With the world as it is, however, it is justifiable to regard aggression and militarism does nothing to further national security. Our efforts to keep out of the European war are justified. Can any rational man say, as the isolationists are now saying in effect, that under no conceivable circumstance will the days to come bring any threat to our national security which we ought to meet by force and that therefore we should bind our hands against any action now in support of those interests which might have even remote possibility of unpleasantness?

MOONLIGHT AND THE BANDIT
Sometimes memory goes back to a perfect moonlight night when we camped in a waxy just each of the Jordan, which Jesus must have travelled with His companions. A bandit crept near. He tried to rob us, and when discovered, fired upon us as he fled. He was returned, and we had a thrilling gun battle.

Strange as it may seem, the incident returned to me always in terms of the moonlight, and the ravine were flooded with such a silvery light that the bandit, as he fled, was as pale as ever dreamed.

Incidents are transitory; background is permanent. It is not very past, but it is long ago. I am old home that abides in our memories, but the whole setting and atmosphere of the home. We built our faith upon some of the words of God, but upon the truth of God Himself.

Give us the wisdom to see always the permanent and the great, O Lord, as distinguished from the passing and the trivial. Amen.

They will go on together from that point or whether, like the two great powers of the world, they will go on together for the two of them at one time.

New York Herald-Tribune: Faced with events like these, can any American simply shrug his shoulders and announce that war is a terrible and bloody business and that therefore, whatever happens, this country must "seek to isolate ourselves completely from it"? Can any rational man say, as the isolationists are now saying in effect, that under no conceivable circumstance will the days to come bring any threat to our national security which we ought to meet by force and that therefore we should bind our hands against any action now in support of those interests which might have even remote possibility of unpleasantness?

Washington Post: In normal times dislike of the American people for militarism properly forms part of the development here and there is very comparable to those of the European powers. That is as it should be. With the world as it is, however, it is justifiable to regard aggression and militarism does nothing to further national security. Our efforts to keep out of the European war are justified. Can any rational man say, as the isolationists are now saying in effect, that under no conceivable circumstance will the days to come bring any threat to our national security which we ought to meet by force and that therefore we should bind our hands against any action now in support of those interests which might have even remote possibility of unpleasantness?

justice and decency which characterize the conduct of some contemporary powers (Prussia, Austria and Russia) ought to be the pressing need of anxious reflection and of preventive measures. . . . One hundred years ago today the people of Quebec were told that the invading convict army of the British Empire had been routed from Upper Canada and 84 from Lower Canada. These were not the first times that British participation in the rebellions, others having been taken first in England. These latter had probably the worst of the deal, for the British had been confirmed they were placed in convict hulks with the very vilest dregs of British criminals, while the British had been mostly honest, if misguided, men.

The French-Canadians who were destined for being British (New South Wales) were segregated from the men from the United Kingdom, and were forbidden, though, of course, as some of the guards were venal (as is always the case), letters and gifts of tobacco were exchanged between the two groups. Some of the Upper Canadian prisoners were permitted to write letters home, submitted to censorship, and these were allowed to be forwarded by the pilot when he left the Buffalo at Rimouski.

The food and drink supplied was far better than that they had received at the Toronto jail or in Fort Henry at Kingston, and much better than was the miserable standard set for immigrants from the old world. The food was barely enough to keep them alive and was the cause of much ship fever.

War and the Farmer
This is a year when the farmer is in a bad way. Once more the measure of democracy and freedom which we like to visualize is threatened. More so today than in 1914. How long this conflict will continue no one knows. All the present indications point unmistakably to a long drawn out struggle. Let us in this war repeat the mistakes of the last war insofar as it line within our power in the internal economy. And speaking as a farmer particularly, do I emphasize this insofar as our western farmers are concerned.

Personally I am convinced that the above situation is a necessary for the efficient co-operation of the western Canadian farmer in the successful prosecution of the war. I am convinced that it is vital to the well-being of the nation that close grain exchanges, thereby eliminating the middle man, be established. Canada is able. 172 REGISTER FOR DUTY IN AIR SERVICE

Calgary Institute Will Train Tradesmen For Flying Corps

With approval given 172 Edmonton applications for war duty with the Royal Canadian Air Force, W. G. Carpenter, principal of the Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary, announced Thursday the Institute would train tradesmen for the R.C.A.F.

Of the 172 applications filed since the air force training station opened here Tuesday, 71 are for commissions and 99 for other ranks. Dates for medical and trade examinations have not yet been set.

FACILITIES
The institute with the national defence department in the utmost desire to have the facilities for the air force, Carpenter said that a letter had been received from the Air Officer Commanding Western Air Command, Vancouver, requesting the Institute to continue its usual course with a view to training young men for subsequent enlistment in the services as tradesmen and also that the Dominion provincial youth training scheme for aircraftmen be revised and as large a class as possible trained under that scheme.

R.C.A.F. will arrange for medical examination of any candidates who may be selected for such a course so that they can be assigned of physical fitness for enlistment in the air force on the conclusion of their course.

OPENS OCT. 2
The Institute opens its winter term Monday, Oct. 2 and students are requested to make immediate preparation for the program.

Conditions of enrollment in the Dominion-provincial plan for preparation of tradesmen for the R.C.A.F. are as follows: Applicants must have at least completed Grade XI; be British subject born of British parents; be not less than 18 years old nor more than 25 on June 1, 1939; be unmarried; be willing to enlist in the R.C.A.F. for a period of five years; be willing to be vaccinated and inoculated; be not less than five feet six inches in height with weight approximately normal for their height; that a student must be much under or over weight; be well, without any physical defects or deformities and have normal vision in both eyes; be able to read, write and understand English; and normal hearing in both ears.

The Youth Division resolved that "Canada in co-operation with other members of the British Commonwealth of Nations should effectively support Britain and her Allies in the present conflict."

The Division, in giving its support stated that "We utterly condemn war as extrajuridical and the laws of God and man. But, since we take the unambiguous stand that Canada should give the Mother Country the most effective support possible."

The war policy of the Youth Division was given attention to the various resolutions passed by the joint cabinet-members of parliament conference and endorsed them.

University is Recording Big Registration

1,236 Students Entered To Date—Kerr Gives Annual Address

Officials of the registrar's department at the University of Alberta announced Thursday that a total of 1,236 students had been registered in the various faculties and schools of the university. Freshman registration, now virtually complete, has exceeded expectation with approximately 538 new students listed.

Annual address to freshmen was delivered by Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, president of the university, Wednesday night in Convocation hall. He advised them that, in beginning their university careers, they must be alert to the needs of the community and women had an important part to play in giving leadership in their country and in the world.

ARTS INCREASE
Wednesday's total of 542 registrations includes only freshmen but all undergraduates in the faculty of arts and its associated schools. To date the total of arts exceeds the last year total by 10 per cent.

In pharmacy there is an increase of 30 per cent. Engineering is up 13 and Agriculture is up 10. Commerce, arts and education, which is being emphasized this year, is up 11. Law is up 10. Medicine and dentistry showed an increase of five, seven and three respectively.

C.O.T.C. officials report about 100 per cent of the students on the list of freshmen to take military training although no official "signing up" has been done as yet.

A total of 70 senior students will be permitted to leave the university after graduation. They have also signed their intention to join the army.

Officials also announced that the Corps will be divided into three groups—group A, freshmen; group B, undergraduates other than freshmen; group C, graduates of the university returning for C.O.T.C. work; and group D, members of the unit already holding C.O.T.C. certificates.

Swiss Huntress Tells Tale of Grizzly Kill: She's Crack Marksman

By HARPER PROWSE

Of the many hunters from all parts of this continent and Europe who have ventured into the unmaped wilderness of northern British Columbia this fall in search of big game the only person to bag a grizzly is attractive, blonde, Mrs. Oetiker, wife of Dr. Fritz Oetiker, noted Swiss surgeon and sportsman.

Returning from their hunting trip Tuesday, they are spending a week in Edmonton making arrangements for their return to Europe.

With gun and camera—Mrs. Oetiker did most of the shooting, in a grizzly hunt which she spent nearly a month hunting in the practically unexplored forests near Dead Man Lake about 100 miles north-west of Fort St. John. On her arrival here they pronounced the country the finest hunting country in the world.

"BLOW ME DOWN"
"Blow me down! That was my lucky day," said Mrs. Oetiker as she recalled the killing of the grizzly for a Bulletin reporter. "We were camped on a little ledge on the side of a mountain, about 100 yards above and a mile away. I saw a large animal moving. It was a grizzly."

"So we got out guns and started off in pursuit. As we were climbing the other side of the valley a large mountain ram head poked over a ledge about 50 yards above us and looked down at us. It was a beautiful specimen of a big horn. So I pulled up my rifle and shot it."

"While the guide was skinning the ram I looked across the valley and now I mean I have seen it. I saw it on the other side of the valley."

STYLISH ARMY UNIFORMS FOR SOLDIERS SOON

British Army Garb To Be Issued Canadians—Slacks and Leggings

New uniforms, similar to those worn by the Thomas Atkins of the British army, will be issued to the Canadian Active Service Force, it was announced Thursday by Lieut.-Col. E. Brown, M.C., Edmonton Garrison Commandant, who will supply them issued as far as possible.

Date of issue has not yet been set, but it is expected that it will be in the near future.

The new uniforms are reported to be both serviceable and smart in design.

ROUSE AND HAT
They consist of a "blouse" or windbreaker, slacks with leggings instead of puttees, as have been used hitherto in the army and a new style hat.

The uniforms so far issued have been those from stores and the new garments will be a newly-acquired supply.

Many a harassed private who has spent weary hours endeavoring to win the elusive puttees in the approved regulation manner will have with delight the prospect of having leggings.

Officers of the Garrison expressed surprise at the prospect of receiving new uniforms and expect they will do much toward ease marching and drilling.

Col. Brown announced that the issue of the new uniforms was now in the hands of the War Department and that the issue would be in the hands of the War Department.

Answer: Opossum. This well-known mammal is the only American marsupial, and this is an animal that carries its prey alive.

However, there is no record that this display of teeth ever helped anyone out of a jam except perhaps during an examination in a dental college.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

Not So Good

Other Angles

Good Prospects

ESKIMOS' slim hope of signing up Danaher and Scholl, ex-Roughriders, was definitely waned yesterday when the executive of the Western Conference turned it down on the precept.

At first glance, you can't help but agree that the action of the executive was just and logical. The two players in question apparently were not giving satisfactory service to Regina for some reason or other. If the executive allowed them to go to another club in mid-season, the door would be thrown wide-open for other players to get their backs up and start dictating to club officials. The said officials would be afraid to fire them for fear they would show up in the togethery of an opposition club within a week.

The conference chiefs, however, declared that in view of Edmonton's lowly position in the standings and need of more reserves that the Eks could go out and import a couple more U.S. stars if they felt like it. In other words the import limitation pact has been scrapped so far as Edmonton is concerned.

It is at this point that the logic of the executive goes a bit awry. By nothing short of a miracle of good luck could the Eskimos get two satisfactory imports from the United States at this time of the year and work them into the Edmonton play in less than two weeks. By that time the schedule would be so nearly over that such a move wouldn't pay.

Danaher and Scholl are the only two players that the Eks can make use of and get fast enough to be worthwhile. In handing down a decision yesterday, the conference chiefs apparently are still clinging to the hope that the circuit will function again next fall regardless of the war. That is a hope that is too thin to even talk about. You can accordingly rule out the effects which the precedent of transferring two ex-Roughriders to the Eks now might have on the set-up next season.

Therefore the executive decision boils down to this. Edmonton can have two more imports because the Eks need more that strengthening in order to make them a profitable attraction at Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary. However, the Eks can't have Danaher and Scholl. It accordingly follows that the Eks can't get anybody at all despite the executive admitting the Eks' need for help and that everything in the conference would gain by Edmonton getting such reinforcements.

A further point is that Danaher and Scholl are ready to come to Eks without any financial guarantees—simply on a make good or no pay basis. To go into the U.S. market and grab a couple players as good as Danaher and Scholl at this time would involve a big addition to the Eks' overhead that the Booster executive might find hard to justify.

Unfortunately the conference heads apparently gave no thought to those angles when reaching their decision. The whole circuit is bound to suffer financially as a result of this snap judgment... which was undoubtedly made with an honest desire to be fair and square to all.

Varsity Track Hopes Brighten

With two proven veterans and several sturdy freshmen working out in green and gold sweat tops yesterday under the supervision of Captain Myatt, track and field hopes of the University of Alberta grew brighter.

Ian Cook, ex hurdler and high jumper, is one of the veterans, while Verne Drake, first-class sprinter, is the other. Ken Bradshaw is one of the freshmen that look good. He is one of Alberta's first varsity athletes with senior and junior aggregate point wins to his credit. Lloyd Grubbs of Oids, erstwhile junior sprint and broad jump champ of Alberta, is another freshman star.

Other likely candidates for the U. of A. team, now working out under Coach Eileen Williams and Chief Coach Myatt are Johnny O'Connor of Calgary, Al MacKenzie of Vancouver, Bob Schrader of Oids, Bill French of Vernon, Jack Edwards of Grande Prairie and Ray Lemieux of Edmonton.

The Khaki Parade

ANOTHER well-known member of Edmonton's sporting fraternity, Edmond Sholl, will be wearing the khaki of the well-known clothing firm of Fleming and Lowden, signed up with the Edmonton Regiment, the Fighting Forty-Ninth. Bill is a member of the Sport Booster Club and has long been one of the city's best sport fans.

Toronto Officials Probe Hurdle Race
TORONTO, Sept. 28.—Police and racing officials Wednesday investigated a reported attempt to "fix" a hurdle race at Woodbine Park Tuesday.

An elderly couple from a town in New York state—police declined to disclose their names—complained they had lost close to $1,000 on a race in which a horse named Jimmy Kirk was supposed to win but Jimmie Kirk ran out of the money.

William Allen, owner of Jimmie Kirk, was arraigned in court on a charge of fraud and remanded to a jail September 29.

BASKETBALL

The final series of games for the Underwood International Trophy opens on Saturday when the

meet in a best-three-in-five engagement. The Wichita team is probably the finest in the States, playing boys' rules, and last 1934 has won 90% of its games. Four of the five starters have been chosen as "All Americans"—the highest honor that can be obtained in the States.

These games mark the final appearance of those two sterling players, Noel MacDonald and Mabel Munton. Your attendance will show your appreciation of the wonderful work of these two girls.

A special exhibition of "free throw" shooting will be staged each night between Myrtle Schmitt, three times American National Champion, and Etta Dann.

THE LOST COIN: The Rev. Kelley Harrell was given an 1853 quarter in 1873. After he spent it by mistake and was unable to recover it, upon returning to a bank he found that he would like to recover the long lost quarter, the teller searched among the coins in his cash drawer and suddenly produced the quarter which had been ordered by its former owner. ROMAN PAID $100,000.00 FOR THIS MAN: General Leonard Dupont (1770-1877) who was killed by Roman Guards while defending the French Embassy, was avenged by the orders of Napoleon. General Berthier, at the head of an army, marched into Rome, gold, equal in purchasing value to more than 100 million dollars today, which makes Dupont one of the most precious men who ever lived.

Yankees' Infield Proven Stronger Than That Of Hot And Cold Reds

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Sometimes Cincinnati Reds' infield is torrid and sometimes it's horrid, but there never is a isn't the best in baseball.

It is the Maginot line of the diamond and the margin of New York's superiority in the world series opening at Yankee Stadium next Wednesday.

There is a familiar face among the champions coast into their long consecutive series. Left fielder, the horse, rusted and retired.

Babe Dahlgren is performing plays around first base that Gehrig in his later days was not up to. With Young Joe Gordon at second, he gives the Yankees the greatest tightest right side they ever have had.

Suggers like Gehrig in his prime don't bloom twice in one season or several seasons, but Dahlgren never. He is a threat at the plate. He has 15 home runs and batted in 68 runs.

Frank Crosetti, whose only fielding mistake is occasionally, has made 24 errors at shortstop all season and cancelled most of them with a double play in the same inning. Red Rolfe has been even more impregnable on third base.

By all measurements the outstanding third baseman of the year has been the Yankees' third baseman, who has been fielding 90 and ranked among the American League's leading hitters with a .320 batting average, 14 home runs and 46 doubles. Gehrig, batting .282, has hit 26 homers and Crosetti, having hit 20 homers, hitting year at .282, has batted 10.

PLENTY GOOD

The Reds' infield at its best will give the Yankees plenty of grief.

For a span of 23 games in July, the Yankees' infield, led by Myers of Cincinnati, accepted 141 chances without a single error. But in September, they committed eight errors in 141 chances, taking part in 146 double plays, and, bating .282, has hit 26 homers and Crosetti, having hit 20 homers, hitting year at .282, has batted 10.

Lonnie Frey has proved an unexpected jewel at second, steadying the infield and bating in the neighborhood of .300, but he doesn't cover ground with Gordon. Otherwise the difference in the Cincinnati infield this year and last, when I kept the Reds from championship contention, is a big one. Yesterday, from the Philadelphia Phillies, he was the best in the league, and last year in the hot corner, and is really the best in the league in the National League.

FORAN LEGION PREPARED FOR GRID MARCH

Montreal Westmonts to Depend on Kids from Junior Ranks

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—The Foran Legion is on the march again with its immediate objective a place in the two-team playoffs of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Coach Chas Foran of Montreal Westmonts admitted today Westmonts claims "will depend a great deal on kids that have come up through the junior ranks and on the Westmonts."

DISABD ONCE
One thing Foran believes has handicapped Westmonts is the fact that only a few weeks ago they disbanded for a short while and announced their intention of abandoning football this season because their dressing quarters had been taken over for military purposes.

This act has put pretty badly and it is an indication of the spirit of the team that they got together and decided to transform a store near their playing field into a dressing room, he said. "We are about three weeks behind because of the layoff but I think we will improve as we go along."

The main cog in Johnny Ferraro, former Cornell University star and undoubtedly one of the best round backfielders in the east.

Kicking duties rest with Roy Muller and quarterback Jimmy Muller, who demonstrated they have "arrived" as blockers by doing the more highly looked after Westmonts' Herbie Westman and Gordie Nowosvolsky.

HIS FRONT LINE

Along his front wall, Foran has Norm Rattle at snap; Dave Ryan and Alex Fleming at inside; Tommy Burns and Murray Hyslop at middle; and the Barton brothers, Ed and Herb, at outside. Burns shows promise of a return to the team that made him one of the most rugged players in the east a few years ago.

Ernie Hammer, retired lineman, is aiding in the coaching. "I intend to step aside gradually this season and let Henry take over the coaching," Foran said. This is going to be my last season of football.

Gas-Housers Beat Reds-Walters 4-0

CINCINNATI, Sept. 28.—Bill McGee stopped Cincinnati Reds cold Wednesday, beating the leaders 4-0 on four scattered hits, and as a result, St. Louis Cardinals retained their slim chance of winning the National Baseball League.

With four games remaining to be played by each team, including the final of their present "crucial" series today, the Rhinelanders lead by 2½ games. They still had a chance to clinch the pennant today, but their failure to hit in their last two games threw this town into a tailspin.

To make matters darker, the Reds' Cards' lack yesterday was Rocky Walters, who had 27 victories, including his last six in a row. The gas-housers made the most of their seven hits, one of which was Terry Moore's 16th home run of the season.

More than 23,000 fans saw Fielder Bill do his stuff. Two of the four widely-scattered blows were permitted were scratched through the infield, Walters contributing one of them.

Cubs Take Lead

POOL BETTING ENDS IN ENGLAND

Government Stamps Out Enterprise Which Gives Jobs to Thousands

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The British government has decided that football betting in wartime cannot be justified, the ministry of information announced Wednesday. It was stated Postmaster General G. G. Robb had met the Football Pool Promoters Association of the government's view.

Having up to the strain already thrown on the post office by the war, the government thinks the further burden of the pool transactions cannot be justified. The decision comes as a blow to an enterprise that provides jobs for thousands of men and women and which is estimated at approximately $7,000,000 is waged weekly.

Pool promoters had hoped to re-organize operations, halted by the cancellation of regular English league schedules on the outbreak of war, when competitive soccer is resumed on a regional basis, October 14. Thousands are employed in some 800 pools under normal conditions and the post office finds it necessary to employ large extra staffs during the soccer season.
